The First Session of the Pueblo Presbytery.

REV. MR. TAYLOR'S SERMON.

Preliminary Organization of the Session—Reports of Church Meeting Notes—Mining Stocks.

The Presbytery of Pueblo, which is to hold its second session in the city, began its sessions last evening in the First Presbyterian Church in the city. There was a fairly good attendance of moderates and elders are expected today. The presbytery comprises all of the district south of Colorado Springs. It consists of ministers for the remainder of the day and good programmes have been prepared for each day. The first session will be held this afternoon, the session last evening being a preliminary.

The evening session was opened by a service of song. As the delegates arrived they saw the banner over the pulpit with these words: "Welcome Presbytery of the Pueblo Presbytery." After the singing prayer was offered by Rev. Wesley Mayo of Rocky Ford.

The retiring moderator, Rev. L. L. [illegible] of this city, then began his sermon upon the subject: "Our Great Commission." Some of the Presbyterian [illegible] Rev. text was a verse in Psalms: "Thy right is like the great mountains." The sermon was an earnest and poetic appeal for righteousness in all things. He said the Psalmist had been enraptured at the prevalence of evil about him, and had doubtless been glad to turn his gaze to the goodness of God.

"As I believe," said the speaker, "that our righteousness is fundamental in our theology, in our character and our social and political reforms. We must, if we are true to our duty, be perpetual preachers of righteousness. The practical thoughts which come to us from the great mountains are what we are doing at them or from them. As we look at them one of the first things which impresses us is their grandeur, their stability, their bulk. As we look at the mountains we become conscious of our own limitations. In righteousness there is something which rebukes pride, and in these great mountains there is something which rebukes our architectural pride. It is something greater and grander than we can always perceive, and there should be no higher criterion by those who cannot always see righteousness in all of God's providences. These mountain domes and pinnacles speak of everlasting foundations, so the right ness of God is grounded deeper than human thought can penetrate. We have a faith that is rock ribbed; our all is worth all in righteousness.

Again the great mountains have their varying aspects to us; we have a varying conception of divine righteousness. Now all is calm, tranquil, full of vague, again everything seems quiet, serene and far away; though detail is not to be seen we are content with the celestial outline. Sometimes the clouds of doubt, of worry, of sorrow, of criticism, of sin, obscure our vision. As the mountains after the clouds have gathered about them come forth one moment we get a new and precious vision of God's righteousness to illuminate our hearts.

Again there is a majestic stillness and mystery in the mountains which we often observe at times in God's righteousness.

The great mountains are inaccessible without hard and toilsome work. So with righteousness; it keeps us at work; it is a struggle all the way to gain the lofty outlook upon the heights above; no sooner is up at bottom Moses was all his life climbing Pisgah only with a strong glow to gain the prize. Then there is the isolation of the mountains; we have the experience of being a dweller alone in God's mountains with Him; there is a sense of moral isolation in our conception of God's righteousness.

Then they attack from the mountains. We may have marvelous visions from the mountain top but we must be certain to have our feet planted firmly on the solid rock of God's righteousness or after all it may be but a mirage. Let us be sure that all our work will stand the test and measure up to the standard of righteousness set before us; let us take our bearings from these heights. Let us not be content with shibboleths, not even with the letter of the Scripture; let us be assured in our own hearts that not only Sinai and the law of its tables but Calvary with the gospel of its cross are the outcroppings of fundamental divine righteousness.

At the evening session of the Presbytery, after the sermon, the new churches of San Pedro and Lockett were admitted to membership. Rev. Geo. W. Pollock of Durango was elected moderator and Rev. G. W. Clark of Pueblo was elected clerk. The following ministerial delegates were present: Reverends Jas. S. Reed, Alamosa; T. L. Taylor and C. S. Barrett, T. C. Kirkwood and Henry C. White of Colorado Springs; G. W. Pollock, of Durango; W. E. Price, Monte Vista; E. Trumbull Lee, First Church, Pueblo; F. N. Palmer, Mesa Church, Pueblo; G. C. Huntington, Westminster; G. W. Clark, Fountain, Pueblo; A. M. Darley, Pueblo; Warren Mayo, Rocky Ford; C. H. Bissell, Rouse. The following lay delegates were present: J. C. Kain, Rocky Ford; Benito Trujillo, Pueblo; W. F. Dumbleton, Castonville; Fred Cone, Canon City; John Lennox and K. McMillen, Colorado Springs.

To night there will be a public meeting. Subject: "What the Presbyterian Church is Doing for the United States and the Rest of the World." Addresses by the Revs. W. E. Price of Monte Vista and the Rev. Geo. W. Pollock of Durango.

Republican Club Meeting.

There was a good attendance at the Republican club meeting last night in Courthouse hall. It only took a few minutes to transact the business, however. Mr. W. S. Boynton presided. He stated that the meeting was called to get Republicans to volunteer to help register the voters in this city. New voters who have not yet registered can only be registered up to the 21st inst. This is true also of people who must be registered for failure to vote at the last election. People who have changed their residence and have only to have their address changed have until the 28th inst.

Mr. Boynton said that the city would be districted and each voter who would volunteer to assist, would be given a certain district to work in. Several persons volunteered for this work.

All present were urged to see that their friends and neighbors are properly registered, after which the meeting adjourned.

Diphtheria Epidemic.

WEST SUPERIOR, Wis., Oct. 12.—Great distress exists at Iron River, Wis., because of diphtheria which is epidemic there. The disease has not been easily guaranteed so far as this city is concerned. Health officers here attribute much of the spread of the disease here to the arrival of people who have fled from the scourge at Iron River. Over a hundred and thirty cases have developed there within a few days. The schools have been closed and a certable panic exists. Business is said to be paralyzed because of the general fear.

MINES AND STOCKS.

The market yesterday was quiet.

World's Fair was quoted at [illegible]

Colorado was quiet at [illegible] bid and [illegible] asked.

Deadwood was quiet at [illegible] bid with few sales.

Leadville was quoted at [illegible] bid and [illegible] asked.

Isabella was [illegible] weaker at [illegible] bid and [illegible] asked.

Fairview Bachings is quoted at [illegible] bid and [illegible] asked. The stock is quiet.

Work was in more or less demand at [illegible] the sales were not however very large.

The War Eagles is doing a good quantity of surface dirt which pays well for the running.

The Pharmacist is reported to have [illegible] feet of the Zenobia vein and will soon double its output.

The Champion of Aroqua Mining company has filed its receiver's receipt for the Champion lode.

The C.O.D. is erecting a new shaft house and is adding a new hoisting plant, both of which will be soon ready for business.

A mine which is showing up well of late is the Mineral Rock on Bull Mountain. It has one of the best defined veins on the hill.

The shaft on the Pike's Peak is now down 100 feet and the bosses are working forty-five men. The mine will double all former records this month.

The Summit has completed its new working shaft and is using the steam hoist and is consequently increasing its output. It has a very large body of ore in sight.

Mollie Gibson was stronger yesterday on the strength of the silver situation and was quoted at $2.[illegible] bid and $2 [illegible] asked, with very little of the stock for sale at all.

The Bequa Gold and Silver Mining and Milling company has contracted with R. A. Banta and O. D. Jones to drive a tunnel on its property [illegible] feet. They agree to pay $5 per foot for the first [illegible] feet and $10 per foot for the remainder.

ANOTHER OUTBREAK.

Was Thought to be Probable at Pine Ridge Agency.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—There is said to be a strong possibility of another Indian outbreak in the Pine Ridge section. The Big Foot band, which Colonel French recently cripples some time ago, recently married by strong, including 150 fighting bucks, from the Standing Rock Agency to Pine Ridge, where they declared they would remain if they had to fight.

They said their people were buried there and they wanted to make it their home. Captain Penny immediately called out his sixty Indian police, arming each with forty rounds of cartridges, to preserve order, and two troops of the famous Ninth Cavalry were dispatched to escort the Big Foot Indians back to Standing Rock. They may precipitate trouble.

As Pine Ridge is not in the military division, nothing is known of any Indian trouble at headquarters. James F. Asay, Indian trader at Pine Ridge, who is now in Chicago, says he left there a few days ago and that there is trouble in the air.

New York Stock Market.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Money on call has been easy, ranging from 2 to 2½; last loan at 2 and closing offered at 2. Prime mercantile paper 4@5 per cent.

The Wall street markets were again influenced by prospective legislation at Washington. At the opening trading was held in check and prices were inclined to sag because of a belief that the Senate had entered upon a prolonged struggle. The Grangers were the weakest stocks at this time, but Burlington and Quincy fell [illegible] per cent. Later, on dispatches from Washington were favorable as to the repeal of the silver law, and the market immediately responded with advances ranging from ½ to 1½. After 2 o'clock the improvement was generally lost, but toward the close speculation was stronger again and the market left off firm. The Industrials, as usual of late, were prominent in the dealings, and figure for 81,[illegible] shares in a grand total of 182,808 for the lists.

International Cricket.

BOSTON, Oct. 12.—The cricket match between the Australians and the All-Massachusetts team was finished this morning, the visitors winning the match with but three wickets down in the second inning. The home team could not hit the bowling of the Australians, while the hitting of the latter team was frequent and good. The home team was also very loose at times. Owing to the roughness of the weather, the score was small, the winners scoring 117 as against 115 by the home team.

THE McCREARY BILL.

Every consideration of justice and common sense demands the amendment of the Geary act on the lines of the McCreary bill. This bill does not in itself secure a large amount of favor to the Chinese, but it is a great deal better, fairer and more civilized than the immediate enforcement of the Geary act, and it is perhaps as much of a remedy as could be expected from the present Congress.

When it is remembered that the division of the Supreme Court came so late that it was therefore impossible for the Chinese to register and that there had been up to that time a great deal of difference of opinion among the best lawyers as to the constitutionality of the law, it would seem that any reasonable person would consent to an extension of the time for registration. But the advocates of the Geary law and the opponents of the present amendment are not reasonable. They seem to be actuated only by a blind hatred of the Chinese, and their chief object is to get as many of them out of the country as possible. To live the Chinese in this country another opportunity to comply with the harsh provisions of the Geary law as regards registration is precisely what they do not intend to do.

A bill has been introduced in Congress to protect the timber on the forest reservations. This is all very well in its way, but it does not go near far enough. What is needed is a measure for competent supervision of the forests in such a way that their supplies of timber which are so much needed may become available for use. There is no surer way of rendering forestry unpopular in the West than by shutting out the forests from all public use.

The peculiarity of the French national character is again shown in the demonstrations over the visit of the Russian sailors. It is safe to say that not all of this enthusiastic welcome is entirely genuine and sincere, but it is after all a very serious matter. The friendship of the French for the Russians is not alarm to them as Russians, nor because there is anything especially sympathetic between the two nations, but because they look upon each other as possible allies in case of a war. The welcome extended to the Russian sailors is not that which is given to friends, but the English treatment accorded to those from whom favors are hoped. The Frenchmen better than any other nation understand how to throw a glamor of romance over a very business-like proceeding, but the Russians are not at all deceived. While the French journals are vying in extravagant endeavors to show their friendship for the French the Russian newspapers are noticeably cool and anxious to explain that the visit of the Russian fleet is not to be considered in an extraordinary manner.

Not one word can be said against the candidates for county offices on the Republican ticket. Not one word has been uttered in this part of the county. Were it not for the continued majority at Cripple Creek their election by an overwhelming majority could now be predicted beyond the shadow of a doubt.

Some of the recall Senators spent their leisure moments in figuring out a proportion as follows: If Senator Allen, who is in his first term, got 108 for fourteen and 15 quarters hours, what will be the combined breath of the speeches of Teller, Stewart and Morgan?

Colorado Springs has the pleasure this week of receiving two organizations that both citizens of the Pueblo prefer to see in this city, the Colorado Grand Lodge of Good Templars. Both are cordially welcome to the city.

Every citizen should vote at the coming election. No one can vote who is not registered. Therefore register.

SCIENTIFIC MISCELLANY

Bimetallism Must be Maintained.

The practical wisdom of the position of The Press in regard to the silver question is confirmed by all the reliable news from the National Capital. It is evident that the Senators opposed to the unconditional repeal of the Sherman law will resolutely maintain their uncompromising attitude. Supported by the unanimous sentiment of their constituents and fortified by the rules of the Senate which forbid anything approaching closure, they are confident in their ability to command a compromise that will recognize the claims of silver as one of the great money metals of the Republic.

There are several ways in which an honorable compromise might be framed. The Press printed the general outline of such an agreement that presented by Senator Manderson of Nebraska in the editorial columns yesterday. Whatever course the would-be autocrats in the White House may pursue, the American people, by an overwhelming majority, are for the use of silver as well as gold as a standard of values in this country. They insist upon a currency that shall be American not British. They demand that the prosperity of the West shall be safeguarded equally with the interests of the East. They want the two great metals maintained at a parity by just and enlightened statesmanship.

The Press believes that this is the path of safety and patriotism; the course which if wisely followed will lift a great burden from the bowed shoulders of the West and unite every section of our common country more closely in interest and in sentiment. Bimetallism is the sound financial doctrine of the American people. It is a corner stone of Republicanism. Republicans must see that it is maintained against the assaults of the devotees of British gold monometallism and British free trade. [New York Press.

VIGOROUS EFFORTS MADE TO PASS THE REPEAL BILL.

Old Senator Stewart Claims to Be Ready to Talk Against Time—The Silver Fight and the Cabinet—Mr. Carlisle and Secretary Carlisle.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 11.—[Special.]—A great vigorous effort is being made to pass the Sherman repeal bill through the [illegible] We are [illegible] to be [illegible] days in this chamber before the contest is over. The desire of the managers of the bill is to hold a quorum in the senate for a long time, if possible for a time long enough to tire out the opposition. But this is easier to talk about than to do. Abundant proof of the talking ability of the silver senators has been afforded during the last few days. Old Senator Stewart is now in his element. The old man from Nevada, who looks so much like a patriarch of ancient mold, is never so happy as when the fighting is hot. He glories in his ability to make speeches in every session and of great length.

An evidence of his confidence in his own powers is found in a proposition which he made a few days ago to Senator Dubois, who has been one of the most active of the Senators who oppose repeal. There were well defined rumors that Mr. Voorhees and his associates were about to force the fighting with these long night sessions in hope to wear out the strength of the opposition. Senator Dubois is young and vigorous, while Senator Stewart is 65. Yet the old man said to the young man:

"Dubois, when the hard fighting comes on, get three or four of the boys to stay with you, and you young fellows take one night, and I'll take the next. By alternating on them I guess we can keep them busy."

"But can you hold up your end all by yourself?" asked Mr. Dubois.

"Don't worry about me. I am an old hand at this business. I have fought Mexicans, Indians, mining camp thieves, claim jumpers and all sorts of things. I guess I can hold this senate up by the tail for a few weeks, taking every other night."

And then Senator Stewart smiled in full confidence in his own staying powers. Now the old gentleman has a chance to see what he can do.

Where the Run Lies.

The repeal managers think they can quickly clear the decks for action. While a large number of amendments to the bill have been offered, these they propose to dispose of without delay. Under the rules of the senate motion to lay on the table is not debatable, and by making this motion on amendment after amendment Senator Voorhees thinks the whole of them can be quickly disposed of. But the rub is how to support the silver senators who are fighting upon the right to debate. Under the rules of the senate there is no method by which debate can be cut off.

The friends of repeal have modified Vice President Stevenson to go into the rules in such a way as to afford some relief, but the vice president declines to depart the slightest from the practice and traditions of the body. "When a question is pending, no motion shall be entertained but the following," say the rules, and then is given a list of the motions which are in order. Among these there is no mention of a motion to vote nor to set a time for voting. Thus we have the anomaly of rules which do not by letter or explicit provision give a parliamentary body any method of producing a vote. It has ample opportunity to debate, but no way of closing debate and proceeding to matters which make it regard as of more importance than discussion—to act, to vote.

Inasmuch as among the motions laid down in the rules as being in order to lay on the table, it follows that the rules of this great body provide means of killing a measure, but none to give life to it. It looks as if the rules were framed to prevent legislation rather than to promote legislation. According to the strict construction of the rules, legislation is almost impossible, save by the unanimous consent of a majority of the minority. The trouble with those who take this view of the situation will be better understood when the meanings of the various issues made in this great fight begin day to day.

Trouble With one Rule.

Where the real trouble is in having a great deal of trouble is with that rule which says motions to amend shall always be in order. Under this the silver men may offer amendments to the repeal bill ad infinitum. They may make these amendments as long as the moral law and the Bible need or have to be read. True, they cannot be discussed, but the simple calling of them will consume a great deal of time. Besides, there are several other motions which the rule provides to be in order which are to go into committee of the whole, to adjourn, to postpone indefinitely, to take a recess, etc. Some of these are debatable and some are not. But the great point from the anti-repeal side of the case is that the motions may be made with the sanction of the rules. On nearly all of them a roll call may be had, for the silver men are easily able to keep enough men on hand to demand the yeas and nays.

A roll call in the senate does not take three-quarters of an hour, as it does in the house, but it requires about 45 minutes, and some of these long night sessions are pretty sure to be taken up with an endless procession of roll calls. The silver senators say that between the inability of the other side to keep a quorum constantly on hand, the offering of new amendments, the making of motions for purposes of delay, demands for a roll call and other time consuming tactics they will be able to weather the storm which the repeal managers are now bringing on them.

Trouble in the Cabinet.

A curious thing about this silver fight is that it has caused trouble in the president's cabinet. Quite a little row is reported between Secretary Carlisle and Secretary Lamont. It grows out of the silver contest. Lamont is a great friend of Senator Gorman's and has been inclined to take Gorman's part. Believing in Gorman's sincerity and loyalty, he some time ago reached the conclusion that a compromise would be absolutely necessary. But when he proposed it in cabinet meeting and mentioned Gorman as his authority, Mr. Carlisle was very angry. He declared he would have nothing to do with any compromise which Mr. Gorman favored. He did not believe much in Mr. Gorman anyway. To all this Lamont replied with some spirit, and President Cleveland had to step in to prevent trouble.

The Origin of Earrings.

It is a mere tradition among the Arabians that earrings came into use in the following way: When Pharaoh summoned Abraham and reproached him for his infamy in saying that Sarah was his sister, Abraham prayed for the king, and Allah heard the king, who now gave Abraham many rich presents, and among others an Egyptian slave named Hagar. She later bare a son, whom he called Ishmael. But Sarah was barren, and the more jealous since the light of Mohammed shone on Ishmael. Sarah obtained the promise of Abraham to put away Hagar and her son. He was undecided until commanded by Allah to obey Sarah in all things. Yet he entreated her not to cast off her foundling and her son. But this he vainly entreated her, for that she declared she would not rest until her handiwork had been undone in Hagar's blood. Then Abraham pierced Hagar's ear quickly and drew a thing through it, so that Sarah was able to dip her hand in the blood of Hagar without bringing the latter into danger. From that time it became a common among women to wear earrings.

Electricity and Life.

Writing on "Electricity and Life" in The Humanitarian, Mr. H. Newman Lawrence comes to the following conclusions: (1) All the thousand and one changes which take place in the structure of the living body, be they due to the increasing and important process of metabolism, or to the exercise of function, or to the effect of stimulants, partake of the nature of chemical change. (2) All chemical changes are accompanied by electrical manifestations. (3) Without chemical change and interchange life does not appear to exist. (4) Therefore life is always accompanied by the generation of electricity. Electrical energy, however, is not the immediate source of the vitality of the body.

Woman's Way.

Mary Ann—Please, mama, I don't think I can get this chicken's head off. I just know I'll get nervous and cut myself.

Mrs. Wilkins—Oh, it's easy enough. Just shut your eyes. That's the way I always do.—Indianapolis Journal.

He Had Been There.

A boy well known in Washington as a fabulist, always accosts a stranger with "I think I have seen you somewhere, which only leads to his relating out the history of the party. One evening he played off his usual game on a gentleman that understood his character, and who replied: "Most likely, madam, for I generally go there."—New York Ledger.

Cause and Effect.

"Love," said the lecturer, "is a psychic manifestation."

"Yes," murmured a young man in the audience. "I do the talking, and her folks do the kicking."—Indianapolis Journal.

Probably very few persons know that the lord mayor is the only person—other than the queen and the constable who knows the password to the Tower of London. The password is sent to the quartier house quotidiently, signed by her majesty. It is a survival of an old custom.

London has a big appetite. It devours every year over [illegible] sheep, [illegible] calves, [illegible] lambs, [illegible] pigs and consumes [illegible] gallons of milk.

There is a painted bench in North Scituate, Mass., with a shelter over it, where a notice has been conspicuously placed. Most lovingly is the inscription on the bench.

For Scrofula

After suffering for about twenty-five years from a scrofulous humor, which would yield to no other treatment, I have taken Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and feel that I am now cured. I have not been troubled with the disease for two years.—Mrs. Leonard Beebe, San Antonio, Texas.

Catarrh

My daughter was afflicted for many years with catarrh. The physicians failed to help her, and I gave her up to the care of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I have not had occasion to change my opinion of the medicine. Recommended by me to friends, it has proved equally beneficial. Mrs. Lucinda Beebe, daughter of Sheldon Beebe, Little Canada, Wabasha, Minn.

Rheumatism

For several years I was troubled with inflammatory rheumatism, being at times so crippled as to be unable to walk. I was induced to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and have found in it a most powerful remedy. The last two years I have been free from the disease, and I attribute my cure to Ayer's Sarsaparilla.—J. L. Hoffman, Lily Dale, N. Y.

NATURE NEVER RIDICULOUS.

A well known [illegible] of the cotton plant [illegible] regarded as [illegible] Millions of bales of this [illegible] thrown away, because of the [illegible] of staple cotton [illegible] market value.

Within a [illegible] has become [illegible] because it [illegible] prices. It furnishes an article [illegible] used for mechanical purposes and is [illegible] valuable as a good and cheap substitute [illegible]

[illegible] the planter finds in it a very fortunate addition to his profits.

But as still further use has been discovered. An English investigator [illegible] to convert this old waste [illegible] large number of factories in the United States are making out of it a substance which is likely in the near future to compete with the market of the rubber product of the Caribbean coast.

Nature is never ridiculous, and when we clear our eyes of all prejudices she quickly opens the door of wealth. Our whaling fleets 50 years ago provided one of our most important industries. Nantucket and New Bedford grew rich and prosperous, sent out scores of vessels on long voyages, sometimes of two or three years.

But whales grew scarce, and we asked what would become of us. The whaling craft rotted in the harbors. Oil became no longer profitable to man "the oil." Then some lucky fellow, digging a well in Pennsylvania, found to his surprise that oil came out instead of water, and all the world wondered. Other wells were sunk, companies were formed and colossal fortunes were amassed. The whales could be dispensed with, for under every flame, in a certain locality, was an inexhaustible reservoir of the precious fluid.

And now we are told that the [illegible] delta of the Mississippi is composed of mud which is valuable as a fertilizer. Toward its rich deposit, which has been brought by the lazy current for ages miles, the gift of every state through which the river flows, and some years [illegible] hence, it will prove a treasure to its owners. We ship fertilizers from distant quarters of the globe, and this one is as marketable as wheat or corn. The demand is steadily on the increase, and it is not improbable that the acres of black loam at the mouth of our lordly river will be shipped for the enrichment of northern farms.

All this seems very odd, but at the same time it is very interesting.—New York Telegram.

A Marvel of Strength.

"Augustus," [illegible] the famous Marechal de Saxe, who commanded the French at Fontenoy, was a marvel of strength. On one occasion he twisted with his fingers only a long nail into a cork screw, with which he drew the corks of half a dozen bottles. He could break with his hands the strongest horseshoes.

One day when in London he met a porter with a dustman which he seized the man by the head, and throwing him in the air, he hurled him right in the middle of his own dust cart. The only opponent who succeeded in resisting him was a woman, a Mlle. Gauthier, an actress. Maurice tried with her to see who could put down the other's wrist, and after a long struggle the woman, but with the greatest difficulty.

The power of Mlle Gauthier's arm was far beyond the common, so that her fingers could roll up silver plates as easily as any one would paper.—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

A Colored Irishman.

A poorly clad little negro, almost pure black and with coarse, kinky hair, wandered into the city hall yesterday and said that he was an Irishman. There was something about his way of saying it that startled everybody within hearing.

"Where do you come from," asked Messenger Edward Heatherton when he heard him.

"From Oireland, sor," replied the little man deferentially.

"You don't mean you're an Irishman."

"Yes, sor. I was born the mile from Skibbereen, in the county Cork, sor."

"Thum thu Gaelic?"

"Thigum gommoch." And the little man began to rattle off Gaelic at a rate that necessitated the calling in of Clerk Michael F. Blake as interpreter. He pronounced George Grant, for that was the negro's name, a genuine Irishman of the smoked variety.

Wisklinski Daniel M. Donegan, the Tammany Hall collector, happened in while the Gaelic test was being applied.

"What is it?" he asked.

"An Irishman."

"Where's he from?"

"Skibbereen."

"That's my place in Ireland. What does he want?"

"Money."

"Same lay as mine. Everybody from Skibbereen sees it."

The little man made a goodly collection of silver and loaded himself out with "100,000 thanks" and "Dhilla na dhilla" —New York Sun.

Discoverers of the Old World.

A principal of one of the grammar schools in Savannah, an old time Irish orangeman, relates an incident which is well worthy of repetition and is indicative of the acuteness of the Irish youth.

One day while he was instructing his class in geography the Bishop of the diocese happened in, and, as is the custom, propounded some questions to the scholars. "What part of the globe comprises Europe and the new world?" was promptly and correctly answered, and when asked who was the discoverer of the new world the entire class answered, "Christopher Columbus."

"Now, my little men," said the bishop, "you have told me who discovered the new world, but tell me who discovered the old world?"

A dead silence lasted for seconds, until a little chap named Malone, the son of a shoemaker, held up his hand.

"Well, my little man," said the bishop, "let us have your answer."

The surprise of the teacher and bishop can be imagined when the youngster replied in a voice shaking confidence in his answer, "Adam and Eve, my boy!"—Savannah Press.

Among the curiosities of Ireland still living is one of the blue red winged grosbeaks, probably the most valuable, as well marked, bird, being worth anywhere between $1,500 and $2,000.

HIGH CARNIVAL AT ST. LOUIS.

The Metropolis of the Mississippi Valley Bids Prosperity Welcome.

Of Fair Festivities the Brilliancy and Variety Outshine the Festivals of the Old World.

Paris, the most magnificent city on earth, continues to lay claim to the proud title of the queen of the central city of the world. However, during the last two or twelve years an American rival of no mean proportions has contested for that distinction, and today St. Louis holds what Paris is reluctantly relinquishing, the title of the central city of the two continents.

Not content with the successful exhibitions of previous years, the Missouri Festivities Association has arranged a programme for 1893 that for brilliancy and variety will be difficult to improve upon. The first of the great attractions, the St. Louis Exposition, will throw its gates open to the public September 9 and continue until Oct. 28th. The well-managed Sousa's Band, which is regarded by the management, which is itself a sufficient indorsement to crowd the magnificent building during every concert.

The naval exposition has been set for the night illuminations. And on the evenings of August 19th, 26th and 31st, September 7th, 14th, 21st and 28th, and October 5th, 12th and 19th, the most magnificent display yet attempted will grace the city of the fortunate visitor, electricity playing a prominent part. The evening of October 24 the Annual Pageant and his followers will parade through the principal thoroughfares, and, immediately after the pageant, which has received considerable promotion through all the world, will be held.

The 14th great St. Louis Fair and Zoological Gardens, October 24 to 28, will be the crowning week of the carnival season. This institution has no peer, and is known in every land where the fame of St. Louis exists. The Missouri Pacific Railway and Iron Mountain Route is a favorite to St. Louis lines, and having at all times the interests of the city in mind, have made a remarkably low round trip rate from all points on the entire system to St. Louis and return during the festivities.

For further information in regard to rates, routes, limit of tickets and other points of the fall festivities, write or address nearest ticket agent in your territory, or B. C. Tomlinson, G. P. and T. Agt., St. Louis.

C. A. TRIPP, G. W. A., Denver, Colo.

Write C. A. Tripp, General Western Passenger and Ticket Agent of the Missouri Pacific Railway company, Denver, Colo., for a book on either Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Hot Springs, Ark., or Summer and Winter Health and Pleasure Resorts, as desired.

THE BURLINGTON.

YOUR LAST CHANCE.

The World's Fair will close October 28th. Never in the world's history has there been anything approaching it in magnificence, extent or scope of its grounds and buildings, or in the character of the varied exhibits, and it will draw from almost every nation on the globe.

If you should miss the opportunity of seeing this grand spectacle it would be the regret of your life. A visit of a week would impart to you a more intimate knowledge of the world's progress, and of foreign lands and people, than could be acquired in years of travel.

Railroad fares to Chicago are down to within a fraction of half rate for the round trip. Therefore, do not put off the order of going, but go at once to the nearest railroad agent and secure your tickets over the popular Burlington Route, whose fast "World's Fair Flyers" leave Denver daily at 7.30 a. m. and 11.30 p. m. and are to all the quickest and best means of reaching Chicago.

REDUCTION IN WORLD'S FAIR RATES VIA THE BURLINGTON ROUTE.

Taking effect August 1, the Burlington route will sell first-class tickets at the following reduced rates:

"A Nutmeg Match" will be given at the opera house next Monday evening. The story tells of how William Hartley, an educated New Yorker while constructing some clocks in the Wooden Nutmeg State, meets and falls in love with Cinderella, a pretty waif with soulful eyes and simple ways, who has been adopted by Robert Lucas. The villain's name is Stoddard and he claims to have been wronged by Hartley's father early in life and therefore seeks revenge on the son, first by creating jealousy and then by attempting to murder Hartley by means of a pile driver. The huge hammer is about to fall on the victim's head when Cinderella rushes beneath the great iron weight and drags her husband to safety. This pile driver scene, put on with all the necessary efforts and heightened by the art of the scene painter, is said to be one of the most thrilling ever put upon the stage. The company carries all its own scenery and the cast is said to be above the average.
